Providing the homeowner with a masculine retreat while still acknowledging the fresh, classical look of the home was paramount. This challenge was realized with a careful selection of materials and finishes; resulting in a space that possesses a light, reflective quality. The designer specified the custom patterned, hand scraped oak floor, inlaid ceiling, and hand distressed mantle and millwork. Antique furniture with custom embroidered upholstery and museum quality artwork.

The designers selected an exotic macassar ebony to accent cherry wood panels. Lighting was extremely important in the design, in order to show off the beautiful macassar ebony. Other custom details include cherry wood floors with an accent border of brass, marble and lacewood inlay. Iron staircase connecting upper and lower library, railing coordinates with foyer railing. Oval dome visible from both levels.
